

ASHLEY D. HARRIS
Project Manager

Working creatively in a team-centered environment ensures that there is no cookie-cutter approach to solving problems for the clients of Dini Partners. Each client setting brings unique attributes and challenges to the table, and that attention to individuality motivates Ashley Harris on a daily basis. Her early career in the legal field, coupled with her extensive volunteer fundraising experience, has enabled Ashley to fine-tune her skills as a strategic thinker, problem solver, and project manager.

Ashley traces her belief in community service back to her six great-aunts and uncles who spent part of their childhood in an orphanage during the Great Depression after their mother died. “Stories of community have always been prevalent in my life, and I truly believe the words ‘If not me, who? If not now, when?’”.

As a graduate of Rhodes College with a B.A. in Third World Studies and German Language and Literature, Ashley observed the last vestiges of the Iron Curtain as a two-time exchange student to Germany. In her free time, Ashley continues her German studies, volunteers at her son’s school, and competes in triathlons.
